

I'm not a bot

Minercraft armorer villager

But let's take things to the next level. They can also cook raw fish in exchange for Emeralds. Now let's look at some example trades at each level. Specific Armorer Trades to Look Out For
Not all trades are created equal. The more you trade with them, the more items become available the next time you visit them. I hope this guide has helped explain the ins and outs of utilizing Armorer villagers. They need to "restock" their trades. They provide a reliable source of high-quality armor, which is essential for survival in Minecraft. Now what? In addition to Emeralds, Farmers may also trade for crops such as Wheat, Beetroot, Carrots, Potatoes, Pumpkins, and Melons. Get Hero of the Village Effect
After successfully defending against a raid, you'll get the Hero of the Village effect for 2 minecraft days. Journeyman Armorer Trades In the Journeyman tier, enchanted books also begin appearing: Enchanted Diamond Helmet - Various low-level enchants Enchanted Diamond Chestplate - Various low-level enchants Enchanted Diamond Leggings - Various low-level enchants Enchanted Diamond Boots - Various low-level enchants Enchanted Diamond Sword - Sharpness I-III, Unbreaking I-III Enchanted Book - Low-level enchants like Aqua Affinity, Feather Falling, etc. In addition to Emeralds, Fishermen may also trade for Coal, String, Bait, and different types of fish. Alright, so you're wandering through your Minecraft world, and you stumble upon a village. An employed Villager can replenish your items if they stand near a workstation that matches their profession. Putting it All Together
Let's do a quick recap on effective Armorer villager utilization: Create an Armorer by placing down a blast furnace near unemployed villagers Identify them by profession, workstation, outfit, and sounds Level Up through frequent trading to unlock tiers and new trades Understand trade mechanics like supply/demand, restocking, and gossip Acquire high-tier gear from Journeyman and Master armurers Reduce prices by curing zombie villagers and gaining the Hero effect Check restock times to see when trades will refresh Trading with Armorer villagers is without a doubt one of the most efficient ways to gear yourself up in Minecraft survival mode. Also, keep an eye out for shield trades and the emerald-for-iron ingot exchange, which can be a great way to acquire early-game emeralds. Why Armurers are Worth the Effort So, why bother with armorer villagers at all? Can armorer villagers sell enchanted diamond armor? You might end up with even worse trades! Honestly, villager AI can be a little wonky sometimes. Before we dive in, let's take a quick look at what exactly an Armorer villager is. Think about it: you could spend hours mining for diamonds, or you could just trade with an armorer and get a full set of diamond armor in a fraction of the time. What are the most useful trades offered by armorer villagers? Plus, it's kind of a cool thing to do, you know? Trading Halls: Build a trading hall! This is basically a dedicated area where you keep all your villagers in one place, making it easy to trade with them. If you have a trading hall, ensure it is fully enclosed and lit to prevent any unwanted visitors from spawning inside. Minecraft is constantly being updated, so there's always the possibility of new trades, new mechanics, and new ways to interact with villagers. Armurers wear brown clothes, gloves, and a goggles mask. Shields: Shields are super useful for blocking attacks. Armurers make that possible. They typically offer items related to fishing. One thing's for sure: armurers will always be a valuable part of the Minecraft ecosystem. This same process works to convert unemployed villagers from breeding centers into Armurers as well. Armorer Trades by Level
The trades offered will depend on an Armorer's current level. Armurers make to do so whenever you come across a village in your adventures. Maybe different types of armor, or unique enchantments. And one of the most useful jobs! In addition to Emeralds, Clerics may also trade for Rotten Flesh, Gold Ingots, Rabbits' Feet, Scutes, and Nether Warts. Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x1 → Bread x6 Beetroot x15 → Emerald x1 Wheat x20 → Emerald x1 Carrot x22 → Emerald x1 Potato x26 → Emerald x1 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x1 → Apple x4 Emerald x1 → Pumpkin Pie x4 Pumpkin x6 → Emerald x1 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x3 → Cookie x18 Melon x4 → Emerald x1 Expert (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x1 → Suspicious Stew x1 Emerald x1 → Cake x1 Master (Any One of the Following) Emerald x3 → Golden Carrot x3 Emerald x4 → Glistering Melon x3 The Fisherman Villager works with the Barrel work station. This will reset their trades, but it's a bit of a gamble. Now get out there and start trading! Remember those discounts! Curing zombie villagers is the key to getting the best deals. While it takes some investment to build them up, you'll gain access to equipment that could take many hours to acquire otherwise! So next time you start a new world, be sure to get yourself an Armorer villager. Ready to gear up? It might take some time, but it's worth it. All Tips and Tricks See more comments (8 Comments)Minecraft Walkthrough Team
This article was created by Game8's elite team of writers and gamers.Leave feedback(Login required)
Are you looking to gear up quickly in Minecraft? What can I do? You will have to wait until the next day in order to do so again. See, villagers take on professions based on the workstations that are nearby. The Future of Armurers in Minecraft
What does the future hold for armorer villagers? Like, sometimes you can get stuff for a single emerald. Finding an Armorer the Natural Way
The easiest way, obviously, is just finding a village that already has an armorer. Make sure the workstation is accessible to them, and that they're able to pathfind to it. Be sure to raise career levels by trading with the same villager as often as possible. Iron is pretty easy to come by, so trading it for emeralds is a good deal. Like, different hats or accessories. This provides a permanent and substantial discount on all trades. Here are typical trades you'll see at each tier: Novice Armorer Trades
Novice armurers are still learning the ropes, so they only offer basic trades: Iron Helmet - For 5-7 iron ingots Iron Chestplate - For 7-9 iron ingots Iron Leggings - For 7-9 iron ingots Iron Boots - For 4-6 iron ingots Chainmail Helmet - For 1-3 emeralds Chainmail Chestplate - For 3-6 emeralds Chainmail Leggings - For 3-6 emeralds Chainmail Boots - For 1-3 emeralds While limited, these trades allow you to acquire iron and chainmail armor without mining or crafting them. You've come to the right place! In... Dear reader, I appreciate you taking time to read this article, though I must sincerely apologize that I will not actually be able to provide... For Minecraft players, locating specific biomes can be a difficult but rewarding endeavor. Start by building walls around your village to prevent mobs from entering. A few other miscellaneous trade offers include Glass, Compasses, Clocks, and Name Tags. Let's first look at how trades are unlocked... Trade Unlocking
New trades are randomly unlocked as an Armorer levels up. They typically offer food related items, particularly meats and other cooked dishes. You can get really creative with it. In addition to Emeralds, Armurers may also trade for Iron Ingots, Diamonds, or Lava Buckets. Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x18 and Book x1 → Enchanted Book x1 Paper x24 → Emerald x1 Emerald x9 → Bookshelf x1 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x1 → Lantern x1 Book x4 → Emerald x1 Emerald x7-35 and Book x1 → Enchanted Book x1 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x1 → Glass x1 Ink Sac x5 → Emerald x1 Emerald x8-44 and Book x1 → Enchanted Book x1 Expert (Any Two of the Following) Book x1 and Book x1 → Emerald x1 Emerald x4 → Compass x1 Emerald x5 → Clock x1 Emerald x8-21 and Book x1 → Enchanted Book x1 Master (Any One of the Following) Emerald x20 → Name Tag x1 The Shepherd Villager works with the Loom work station. The Armorer Villager works with the Blast Furnace work station. They need to interact with the workstation to restock their inventory. Trade with Villagers using Emeralds and other resources to get special items in Minecraft! Read on to see a list of all villager trades, jobs and workstations, as well as how to level up your villagers, give them jobs, and get discounts on trades. The Leather pieces of Armor are dyed random colors. Yes, please! Also, the coal and iron ingot trades are a great way to get emeralds early on. Be sure not to trade for the same item as well, as the amount necessary to complete the trade increase each time. Example curing process: Brew a splash potion of weakness (nether wart + fermented spider eye) Toss splash potion at zombie villager to weaken them Feed zombie villager a golden apple Wait a few minutes for cure Zombie shakes, emits smoke, and turns back into an Armorer! When cured, that Armorer's trades will be permanently discounted by up to 75%! So intentionally convert and cure your Armorer for massive price reductions. You can force a restock by destroying and replacing their blast furnace workstation. Diamond armor is the best armor in the game (besides netherite, but that's a whole different story). This allows them to offer armor, tools, and materials in exchange for resources through trading. Villagers need to access their workstation to refresh their trades. Like, rain making you slower or something. Trades Aren't Refreshing
Villagers need to work at their workstation to refresh their trades. Basic Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Three of the Following) Coal x15 → Emerald x1 Emerald x3 → Iron Axe x1 Emerald x7-20 → Iron Sword x1 (Enchanted) Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x3 → Chain Leggings x1 Emerald x36 → Bell x1 Iron Ingot x4 → Emerald x1 Journeyman (Any Three of the Following) Diamond x1 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chain Helmet x1 Lava Bucket x1 → Emerald x1 Emerald x4 → Chain Chestplate x1 Emerald x5 → Shield x1 Expert (Any One of the Following) Emerald x18 → Diamond Boots x1 (Enchanted) Emerald x21-23 → Diamond Leggings x1 (Enchanted) Master (Any One of the Following) Emerald x22 → Diamond Helmet x1 (Enchanted) Emerald x23-35 → Diamond Chestplate x1 (Enchanted) The Butcher Villager works with the Smoker work station. Make sure your village is well-protected. Let's get started! What Exactly is an Armorer Villager? Here are the amounts of XP earned for some common trades: Trade XP Earned Coal for Emeralds 1-2 XP Iron Armor pieces 2-5 XP Diamond Armour pieces 10-12 XP Enchanted Books 15-30 XP So trade often with your Armorer to quickly boost them through the levels! Armorer Villager Trading System
Minecraft villagers utilize a robust trading system. Village Hero Status: If you defend a village from a raid, you'll get the "Hero of the Village" effect. So if an Armorer is out of a key item, try breaking and replacing their workstation. There are a couple of ways, and they're both pretty straightforward. How to Reduce Armorer Trade Prices
You've probably noticed those high-tier trades are very expensive! Diamond gear can cost over a stack of diamonds and emeralds each. Ensure that the blast furnace is accessible and that the villager can pathfind to it without obstructions. In addition to Emeralds, Tool Smiths may also trade for Coal, Iron Ingots, Flint, or Diamonds. They typically offer decorative blocks such as colored wool, carpets, beds, and banners. They typically offer crops and other food items. Anyway, I hope this guide has been helpful. Villager Won't Refresh Trades
Profession: Make sure the villager is unemployed (doesn't already have a job or a bed). Tips: Beds must have at least 1 block space above them for villagers to detect them. Now, here's a tip: make sure the villager you're trying to convert doesn't already have a bed or another workstation assigned to them. They typically offer variations of Stone Blocks such as Stone Bricks, Terracotta, and Quartz Blocks. Anyway, back to armurers... Well, it's hard to say for sure. This will apply a temporary discount to all villagers in the vicinity, reducing their prices by up to 7.5%. It's a bit of a hassle, but the discounts are totally worth it. Awesome. For example, enchanted diamond gear is ultra rare. By the way, did you know the blast furnace is crafted with iron, smooth stone, and a furnace? Their trades level up as you trade with them more. Additionally, simply trading with villagers increases your reputation with them, leading to better prices. With so many themed skin packs out there to choose from, custom skins let you show off... Minecraft is one of the most popular games in the world, with over 140 million monthly active players. The enchantments they offer are random, but some of the most desirable include Protection (reduces all types of damage), Unbreaking (increases the durability of the armor), and Mending (repairs the armor using experience orbs). Plus, the enchanted armor is a huge bonus. Becoming a Master Armorer Trader So, that's pretty much everything you need to know about armorer villagers in Minecraft. If you trade for the same item multiple times in a short period, its price will quickly skyrocket. Let me know if you have any other questions! Are you seeking adventure and epic loot? I still jump every time one sneaks up on me. So, next time you're exploring a village, be sure to pay your local armorer a visit. Having solid armor is kinda important, then. You can organize them by profession, and it just makes everything more efficient. Positioning Armurers near each other can let them share rare trades through gossip. With enough savings, you can kit yourself in god-tier armor! So focus on leveling up your Armorer to unlock the most valuable trades. Also, make sure it is during working hours, as they will not refresh trades during their sleep schedule. Along with their signature outfit, there are other telltale signs that set them apart from normal villagers. As long as there are mobs to fight and adventures to be had, people will need armor. Exploring the secret rooms hidden within Minecraft's rare woodland mansions can reward you with untold treasures! Join me... Hey there fellow Minecraft enthusiasts! Are you looking to make smooth sandstone for your next big build project? Curing Zombified Villagers, will help raise your reputation with them, which in turn will give you a discount when trading with them. Then you need an armorer villager! In this comprehensive, easy-to-follow guide, I'll teach you everything you need to know about getting, keeping, and utilizing Armorer villagers in Minecraft. When two villagers gossip, their trades have a chance of being pooled together to expand their offerings. Use Trade Supply & Demand
As mentioned earlier, supply and demand impacts prices. This is important, because the higher the level, the better the stuff they offer. Apprentice Armorer Trades
At the Apprentice level, Armurers begin offering diamond gear: Diamond Helmet - For 6-8 diamonds and 2-4 emeralds Diamond Chestplate - For 8-10 diamonds and 4-7 emeralds Diamond Leggings - For 7-9 diamonds and 4-7 emeralds Diamond Boots - For 5-7 diamonds and 2-4 emeralds Diamond Horse Armor - For 8-10 diamonds and 5-8 emeralds These start to become quite pricey, but enable early access to diamond gear. Trust me, I've been there. Curing Zombie Villagers: This is the big one. Seriously, a good armorer villager can set you up for pretty much any adventure. Master Armorer Trades
Finally, the Master Armorer tier offers incredibly powerful gear: Enchanted Diamond Helmet - Respiration III, Aqua Affinity I, Protection III-IV Enchanted Diamond Chestplate - Thorns III, Unbreaking III, Protection III-IV Enchanted Diamond Leggings - Blast Protection IV, Protection III-IV Enchanted Diamond Boots - Feather Falling IV, Depth Strider III, Protection III Enchanted Diamond Sword - Sharpness IV-V, Unbreaking III, Looting III Enchanted Book - High-level enchants like Mending, Efficiency V These are absolutely end-game, ultra-rare trades. Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x1 and Raw Cod x6 → Cooked Cod x6 Coal x10 → Emerald x1 String x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x3 → Bucket of Cod x1 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x1 and Raw Salmon x6 → Cooked Salmon x6 Raw Cod x15 → Emerald x1 Emerald x2 → Campfire x1 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Emerald x10-21 → Fishing Rod x1 (Enchanted) Raw Salmon x6 → Emerald x1 Expert (Any One of the Following) Tropical Fish x6 → Emerald x1 Master (Any Two of the Following) Oak Boat x1 → Emerald x1 Pufferfish x4 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you'll need: 3 Smooth Stone blocks - Made by smelting regular stone in a furnace using coal as fuel 5 Iron Ingots - Obtained by smelting iron ore mined with a stone pickaxe or higher 1 Furnace - Regular furnace crafted with 8 cobblestone With these materials, arrange them in the following blast furnace recipe: S S S IFIF F F S = Smooth Stone 1 = Iron Ingot F = Furnace Now with your newly crafted blast furnace in hand, simply place it down near beds in a village. They typically offer items related to Bows and Arrows. Even if the villagers have the same profession, the items that they would like to trade for, as well the items that you receive will vary. Some are just way more useful than others. See All Stone Mason Trades
Items Needed - Items Received
Novice (Any Two of the Following) Clay Clay x10 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Brick x10 Apprentice (Any Two of the Following) Stone x20 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Chiseled Stone Bricks x4 Journeyman (Any Two of the Following) Diorite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Diorite x4 Andesite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Polished Granite x4 Granite x16 → Emerald x1 Emerald x1 → Dripstone Block x4 Emerald x1 → Emerald x1 The Fletcher Villager works with the Flething Table work station. Diamond Armor: Obviously, this is the big one. Understanding Armorer Trades
Alright, so you've got your armorer. But even without any major changes, armurers are already a fantastic addition to any Minecraft village. How can I protect my armorer villagers from being attacked by zombies or other hostile mobs? In the world generation of Minecraft, you'll find NPC villages populated with passive villager mobs. They're a valuable asset to any player, providing a reliable source of armor and emeralds. And as long as there's a need for armor, there will be a need for armurers. To trigger a raid, consume an ominous banner aka the "bad omen" effect and enter a village. So, basically, just be a good customer! Seriously, curing zombie villagers is the best way to go. This guide will cover: Finding or creating an armorer villager Understanding their trades (and why they're useful) How to get discounts (everyone loves a bargain!) Tips for making the most of your armorer Basically, by the end of this, you'll be an armorer villager expert. This is done by splashing them with a splash potion of weakness, then feeding them a golden apple. Profession - An Armorer's profession will be displayed as "Armorer" when hovering over them. Armorer Villager Trade Levels
Now onto the good stuff - let's look at the trades! All Armorer villagers will go through various trade levels, identified by badges on their apron: Level Badge Trades
Novice Bronze Lowest tier trades Apprentice Silver Medium tier trades Journeyman Gold High tier trades Master Emerald Maximum tier trades
As you trade with an Armorer, they'll gain experience and progress through the levels. Consider constructing an iron golem, which will actively defend the villagers from threats. One of the coolest things about them is the villagers themselves, especially the ones with jobs. By understanding these key mechanics, you can more efficiently trade with and level up your Armorer villagers. They typically offer weapons of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. It might take them a few seconds to recognize the workstation, but they'll get there eventually. Well, the answer is simple: they're incredibly useful. Just be patient, and try different things until you figure out what works. Armurers work throughout the day but need to sleep in nearby beds at night. Having that diamond gear will make you all but invincible in the early and mid-game stages. Reputation: Trading with villagers increases your reputation with them. Because of this, make sure to take special care when choosing which villagers to trade with. They're useful, they're interesting, and they're a great way to gear up for adventure. Breeding Villagers: Want more villagers? They typically offer armor of increasing quality, with higher-leveled traders offering enchanted weapons. Keep this price mechanic in mind when trading repeatedly for gear - costs can spike rapidly! Restocking Trades
Trades also have limited stock that must be periodically restocked. So pace out your trades for items you buy frequently instead of buying them out all at once. And always, always protect your villagers! They're valuable assets. They typically offer map related items. Here is what you