It started with a kiss, in the back row of the classroom How could I resist the aroma of your perfume? You and I were inseparable, it was love at first sight You made me promise to marry you, I made you promise to be my bride But then you were getting old and I had just about turned nine I thought that life was always good, I thought you always would be mine I started with a kiss, I never thought it would come to this It started with a kiss, I never thought it would come to this I remember every little thing, like fighting in the playground Cos some good looking boy had started to hang around That boy hurt me so bad but I was happy 'cause you cried Still I couldn't help but notice that new distant look in your eyes And then when you were sixteen I had just turned seventeen I couldn't hold on to your love, I couldn't hold on to my dream It started with a kiss, I never thought it would come to this It started with a kiss, I never thought it would come to this You don't remember me do you? You don't remember me do you? You don't remember me do you? Walking down the streets again, the star of my love story And my heart began to beat so fast, so clear was my memory I heard my voice cry out your name as she looked and looked away I felt so hurt, I felt so small, it was all that I could say You don't remember me do you? You don't remember me do you? It started with a kiss, I never thought it would come to this Have the inside scoop on this song?
