Mother! is a 2017 American psychological horror film written and directed by Darren Aronofsky, starring Jennifer Lawrence, Javier Bardem, Ed Harris, Michelle Pfeiffer, Domhnall Gleeson, Brian Gleeson, and Kristen Wiig. The plot follows a young woman whose peaceful life with her husband at their country home is disrupted by the arrival of a mysterious couple. Their presence leads to a series of chaotic and destructive events. The film premiered on September 5, 2017, at the 74th Venice International Film Festival, where it was selected to compete for the Golden Lion. It was released in the United States by Paramount Pictures on September 15, 2017. The film grossed $44.5 million worldwide. It received generally positive reviews from critics. In the movie, Him, a poet struggling with writer's block, places a crystal object on a pedestal in his study and transforms it into a beautiful home. Mother awakens in her bed and wonders aloud where Him is. Their renovation of the house reveals strange visions, including a beating heart within its walls. A stranger called Man arrives, claiming to be an orthopedic surgeon, and His wife Woman arrives soon after. Mother becomes increasingly frustrated with their guests, but Him begs her to let them stay, revealing that Man is actually a fan whose dying wish was to meet Him. However, when Man and Woman shatter the crystal object, Him becomes angry and boards up his study. Man and Woman's two sons arrive unexpectedly, leading to a violent fight over Man's will. The injured son dies, and dozens of people arrive at the house to mourn his death, causing chaos. Mother snaps and orders everyone to leave when they break a sink. She berates Him for allowing so many people inside and ignoring her needs, but their argument leads to passionate love-making. Their child is born, and Him's poem is published, selling well. However, more fans arrive, and Mother tries to lock the doors but cannot stop them from causing havoc. Military forces are called in to battle the cult that has formed around Him, resulting in mass executions. Mother goes into labor and gives birth inside Him's study while Him watches helplessly as the chaos subsides outside. Him finds gifts left by his fans and tells Mother they want to see their newborn son, but she refuses to hand him over. He takes the child outside and passes him around wildly until he is killed. Mother finds people eating her son's mutilated corpse and attacks them savagely. They turn on her and beat her badly until Him intervenes. In the midst of chaos, Mother tries to find forgiveness, but her desperation gets the best of her as she frantically searches for an escape from the impending doom. She flees to the depths of their home's basement oil tank and sets it ablaze, unleashing a catastrophic explosion that ravages the crowd and reduces their house to ashes. Miraculously, Him emerges unscathed from the inferno, while Mother suffers severe burns. As she struggles to comprehend what has transpired, Him reveals his enigmatic presence, assuring her that nothing was her fault. He vows to take her on a journey back to the beginning and asks if her love still endures; with her permission, he removes her heart from her chest, releasing a crystalline object within. This mysterious gesture transforms their home into a serene sanctuary, as a new Mother awakens in their bed, bewildered by Him's disappearance. Mother! received generally positive reviews from critics, who praised Darren Aronofsky's direction and Jennifer Lawrence's performance. The performances were particularly praised by critics, with Lawrence being singled out for her role in the film. Despite receiving a mixed response from some critics, the overall consensus was that Mother! is a thought-provoking film that showcases Aronofsky's ambition as an artist. Darren Aronofsky's "Mother!" receives a mixed bag of reviews from critics, with some hailing it as a visionary masterpiece and others dismissing it as pretentious nonsense. Mother! is a film that showcases Darren Aronofsky's overwrought style, which can't be matched by the small, humble mansion it's set in. Unlike the grandeur of its surroundings, the film itself is a cluttered mess of self-indulgent solipsism. Aronofsky wants to make sure everyone knows he's been thinking deeply about what art means, but his focus on himself can be really frustrating. Many critics have panned the film, saying that most of the dialogue and visual effects are clunky and unimpressive. David Edelstein from New York magazine barely mentioned any redeeming qualities of the movie. The only positive feedback came for Jennifer Lawrence's performance in another category. Mother! won an award for being one of the campiest films of the year, but it also lost out on several other awards that might have been a better fit for its content. It was nominated for several Golden Raspberry Awards, which are given to the worst in film. Despite this, some people think it's underrated and deserves more recognition. Many critics didn't enjoy Mother! as much as they would have liked, but there were still some positive comments about certain actors' performances. The movie also received a few awards for its visuals and cinematography. "Darren Aronofsky's 'Mother!' Receives Mixed Reception After Its Theatrical Release". mother! is an explosive retelling of creation in fire and blood, Darren Aronofsky's virtuosic thriller that makes your head explode. The film tells the story of a young woman named Jennifer who becomes the wife of a bestselling author, played by Javier Bardem, who is struggling to write his next novel. As the story unfolds, Jennifer's world begins to unravel, and she finds herself trapped in a desperate game of survival. The film's use of visual and auditory effects creates a sense of chaos and disorder, mirroring Jennifer's growing desperation. The film has been met with a mix of reactions from critics and audiences alike, with some praising its originality and audacity, while others have criticized its perceived misogyny and lack of subtlety. Despite this, mother! remains a thought-provoking and unsettling exploration of the darker aspects of human nature. Jennifer Lawrence's film "Mother!" received mixed reviews from critics, with some praising her performance and others criticizing the film's tone and content. mother: a multifaceted term encompassing diverse meanings and connotations. mother n. a woman who has given birth to a child; person or thing that is very large, powerful, or impressivemother noun1. female parent, mum (Brit. informal), ma (informal), mater, dam, old woman (informal), mom (U.S. informal), mummy (Brit. informal), old lady (informal), foster mother, birth mother, biological mother Mother and child form a close attachment. verb Related words adjective maternal Quotations "So for the mother's sake the child was dear""And dearer was the mother for the child" [Samuel Taylor Coleridge "Sonnet to a Friend Who Asked How I Felt When the Nurse First Presented My Infant Child to Me"] "Honour thy mother and thy father" Bible: Exodus "As is the mother, so is her daughter" Bible: Ezekiel "All women become like their mothers. Copyright Although motherlessness is a widespread phenomenon in many cultures, losing one's mother at an early age can be extremely challenging. Orphaned children, who are left without their mothers, often experience difficulties in forming emotional connections with others, including their fathers, relatives, and friends. In the past, children were frequently raised by extended family members, neighbors, or community leaders after their mothers passed away. These caregivers played a vital part in maintaining the child's physical and psychological well-being. The youngsters often learned essential life skills like cooking, cleaning, and childcare from them. However, with urbanization and the rise of nuclear families, there has been an increase in the number of children who are left to care for themselves after their mothers pass away. This can result in youngsters being unable to fulfill these obligations effectively, which might have a negative impact on their emotional well-being. The fact that mothers play such a significant part in a child's life cannot be overstated. From providing basic necessities to offering love and support, they serve as role models and provide youngsters with the skills necessary for success in life. The loss of a mother can be particularly tough on young children who rely heavily on their mothers' care and support. In addition to giving youngsters fundamental lessons, mothers also play a part in keeping families connected. They often organize gatherings and celebrations that bring family members together. Youngsters frequently learn social skills like communication, empathy, and cooperation from their mothers. When the mother is absent, these essential abilities might be lost, leading to difficulties in forming close relationships with others. Losing one's mother can have a profound influence on a child's emotional well-being and future. Mothers play a crucial part in shaping youngsters' personalities, values, and attitudes toward life. The absence of a mother can result in youngsters feeling isolated, lonely, and vulnerable. As a result, it is essential to provide support and guidance to youngsters who are experiencing the loss of their mothers. In recent years, there has been an increase in the number of children who are being raised without their mothers due to various factors such as divorce, separation, or maternal death. These youngsters may be at risk for developing emotional and behavioral problems if they do not receive adequate support and care. It is crucial that we offer assistance and support to youngsters who have lost their mothers in order to help them navigate this difficult period of their lives. This can involve providing them with a secure environment, encouraging them to communicate openly about their feelings, and helping them develop coping mechanisms for managing stress and anxiety. By doing so, we may aid youngsters in developing into healthy, happy, and fulfilled adults who are able to build strong connections with others and navigate the challenges of life with confidence and resilience. ##her stepdaughter was made to do all the work of the house and acted like a cinderella in the family. When women came over and casually asked "Where's Maggie been lately?" the mother would shake her head at them, appalled by their words. All that day, though he waited for Mr Abel until evening, Kit kept away from his mother's house, determined not to anticipate the fun of the next day but to let it come to him in full; for tomorrow was the big day he had been waiting for—tomorrow was the end of the first quarter and he would receive a large sum of thirty shillings for the first time—tomorrow was a half-holiday devoted to entertainments, and little Jacob would get to try oysters and see a play. Consequently, the advertisement was withdrawn at a loss - as my mother's own wine was available then - and ten years later, the raffle for the caul was held in our area, with fifty members paying fifty-pence each, the winner spending five shillings. I must confess that my pride was wounded if not for my curiosity, which had reached its peak by Eustace presenting me to his mother. She read it reverently, as it represented her father she had never known and her mother she barely knew, though those wise eyes were gray. I named the infant "Pearl," as being of great value - purchased with everything I had - my mother's only treasure! I was at home again in ten days—and my mother's arms enveloped me. I don't think I have words to describe the meeting between the mother and daughters Word of the Day is a fun and interactive way to learn new vocabulary and explore the world of words.
